Found-A Mysterious Surveying

Party.

DANVILLE, Va., March 18.—Danville has had two genuine sensations to-day. On Saturday last G. K. Poindexter, proprietor of the public warehouse, who had been renting from the Danville Warehouse Board, approached Mr. E. F. Acree, chairman of the board, and told him he could not longer pay his rent, and wanted to surrender his house. He requested Mr. Acree, however, not to make the fact public until Tuesday, as he had to go to Chatham on Monday. Mr. Acree complied with the request, but as Poindexter did not show up to-day Mr. Acree made formal announcement of Poindexter's failure. The news rapidly spread and caused a big flurry in tobacco circles. It was known that he owed large sums of money, but nobody knew the exact amount. Upon investigation it was found he was overchecked at Patton, Sons & Co.'s bank to the amount of $6,850; but of this amount he had collateral in bank almost enough to secure the bank, and their loss will be trifling. His endorser, a well-known citizen here, is the sufferer, it is alleged, to the tune of $6,000. In addition to this he owes his employes various amounts from a hundred to a thousand dollars, and has paid checks outstanding amounting to two thousand dollars. The ughest feature of the matter is that Poindexter is alleged to have collected and pocketed money which did not belong to him. The bank had advanced him money on tobacco sold at his warehouse on Friday with the understanding that Poindexter would deposit the checks he received on these tobaccos from the buyers. Instead he collected several hundred dollars and took it away with him. He went to Lynchburg on Saturday and has not since been seen. He may turn up, of course, but the general impression here is he has skipped the town. He is comparatively a voung man, but had been in business for several years, and had always been active and enterprising. He leaves accounts worth perhaps $4,000, but no other assets, and his creditors will get comparatively nothing.

THE SECOND SENSATION. two genuine sensations to-day. On THE SECOND SENSATION.

The next sensation alluded to was the arrival of Major William Gordon and a party of engineers to survey a new line of railroad for the Richmond and Danville Company. The party came with tents, mules, and full equipment, and at once went into camp on the outskirts of the city. They will begin work on the old line of the North Carolina Midland road, though what is the object and what sort of a road is in contemplation nobody here seems to know. Some are disposed to think the object is to build a new line to the South, as part of the Richmond and Danville's line is the North Carolina road from Greensboro' to Char-Richmond and Danville's line is the North Carolina read from Greensboro' to Char-lotte, which the company lease. Others think it but a feint on the part of the Rich-mond and Danville people to bluff the Atlantic and Danville Company, which proposes to extend its line to the West, but all is mere speculation, and the real object of the survey is a mystery which the peo-ple of Danville would like to have ex-plained.

You will continue to use this justly renoved nerve invigorant and stomachie. It is in the exigency supposed just what it wanted. When the news of the supersedeas was announced to him this afternoon he was almost overcome with joy, and was profuse in his gratitude to his counsel, R. B. RALEIGH, N. C., March 18.—Governor Fowle vesterday received a letter written by John Rearson, J. Rothweiler, L. F. Cleveland, and E. B. Joiner, who has become so notorious by his complaints of assault upon him in Randolph county and by his dismissal by a negro congregation near here. The let-(Correspondence of the Richmond Dispatch.)

PETERSBURG, March 18, 1890.

Messrs, Cameron & Co. are making great improvements to their large tobacco-factory on Mars street, and have a large force of hands at work. This morning a portion of the scaffolding around the new walls broke and fell, precipitating five colored men to the ground, a distance of about fifteen feet. James Monroe was quite painfully injured, and had to be taken home. The other four—W. H. Baugh, John Warren, Archer Jones, and Pompey Harrison—were so slightly hurt that they were all able to return to work after very little delay. The escape from serious injuries was not only very fortunate but very remarkable, Randolph county and by his dismissal by a negro congregation near here. The letter is remarkable in tone, and states that Joiner and his wife were set upon December 3d by masked men, who inflicted many wounds upon them; that they have been refused redress by the officers of the law and have been shamefully traduced and pursued by newspapers, and are refused the opportunity of preaching the Gospel elsewhere in North Carolina and of thus earning support. The committee then in the name of the nation and of their Church enters a protest against these outrages, whether they be perpetrated by masked assassine or cowardly intimidation of cringing negroes or false and mischief-ringing negroes or false and mischief aking newspapers. THE GOVERNOR'S REPLY.

To this letter the Governor to-day re-"As you seem to be a very simple and credulous people, striving with more zeal than judgment to right what you assume to be a great wrong. I answer you with the same simplicity and frankness. I know the kind-hearted but excitable colored people when their sympathies have been strongly aroused. If Joiner was treated as you claim, then justice requires that the people who assaulted him should be rigorously punished and the courts in North Carolina stend ready to give Joiner their assistance whenever he demands it. The county in which the outrage is said to have been committed is a Republican population, being composed of a Quaker element, and there is no question that the perpetrators of the offence would have been punished if Joiner had been able to show that any one had injured him; but unfortunately he did not do so. Even in Cincinnati you will see the unreasonableness of attempting to punish a man for a crime before he can be identicated. Vour whole communication is based The remainder of the amendments placed upon the bill by the Appropriations Committee were agreed to, and several others added appropriating small sums. The bill was then passed.

The Blair educational bill was taken up at 2 o'clock as unfinished business, and Mr. Hawley addressed the Senate in opponention to it. Mr. Hawley addressed the Senate in oppoposition to it.

Mr. Hawley summed up the situation by saying that twenty-tw northern Statesdid not want the bill. They had no need of it. They would be ashamed to say that they wanted money. In fact, they would be giving more than they got—perhaps every one of them. Seven southern States had two senators each opposed to the bill distinctly, and expecting to vote against it. That made twenty-nine States that did not need the bill, and it left twelve or thirteen more to be accounted for. Of the sixteen southern States seven had both senators opposed to the bill, and the other nine were about equally divided. The majority of the senators from the States that were formerly slave States and for which the bill was intended, were to-day opposed to the bill. The great body of the northern people were willing to do anything in the matter that would be reasonable; but they would be ashamed to be called stingy in trying to force "spoon victuals" upon the South. As to the appropriation of $2.000.000 for the construction of school-houses, Mr. Hawley spoke of the old practice of the houseraising bees in the rural parts of New England, and said that the school-house where ne went to school, and where an intelligent Secteman taught all the children, including the young men who read fluently the pages of Virgil, had not cost for its erection more than $5, and it was an excellent school. It was mighty easy, he said, to keep schools down South. Socrates had not any school at all, and yet he was the greatest teacher of Athens. The pleasantest way to keep school in the Pages of the State and Federal governments as understood for one hundred years was a failure. That was what the bell meant. It meant that the people under the old organization had been found incanable of performing the unreasonableness of attempting to punish a man for a crime before he can be identified. Your whole communication is based upon the Indian practice of taking revenge when one of his tribe has been injured upon the first one he meets, whether the guilty one or not. In regard to the negroes in the church-meeting at Oberlin who requested Joiner to depart from their midst, if you think the congregation is composed of cringing negroes who had been intimidated by cowards, you are evincing a degree of credulity without parallel even among our negro pomplation. Oberlin is a colored town in the Republican county of Wake. Its inhabitants are as respectable and independent as you will find in any colored community on earth. Judging from your letter, there is no man among you who would resist opearth. Judging from your letter, there is no man among you who would resist oppression like this respectable church of colored men, whom you have the audacity to denounce as cringing negroes. The Methodist Episcopal Church, South, in North Carolina is one of the largest and most influential denominations in the State, and would never submit quietly to the Court's refusing justice to any one entitled to its protection; but it is unreasonable for you to require any more protection
